Why Dryer Vent Cleanings Are Important

1. They Ensure Greater Dryer Efficiency

Dryers shouldn't have to be run multiple times to dry just one load of laundry. Unfortunately, this a common occurrence in many households, with most homeowners chalking it up to an old or inefficient dryer. Eventually, they go out and invest in a new dryer, only to discover the same issues still occur.

So, before you invest in a new dryer, call English Sweep, Inc. The solution may be easier and more cost effective than you think. If you start investing in dryer vent cleanings, you'll likely find that your dryer-related issues were simply due to a clogged-up venting system.

2. They Lower Your Risk of Carbon Monoxide Exposure

Due to its colorless, odorless, and extremely poisonous nature, carbon monoxide is one gas people work hard to avoid. You may already be investing in regular chimney inspections, along with carbon monoxide detectors for your home, but if you want to ensure your household truly stays safer, your dryer vents should be examined regularly as well. Because the reality is that a clogged-up vent is going to make it much more likely that harmful carbon monoxide fumes will enter your home. Avoid the risk by having those pathways cleared out routinely.

3. They Reduce Potential Fire Hazards

The leading cause of dryer-related fires is clogged vents. Every single year these events lead to home damage, injury, and even death. But they can be easily avoided by simply getting those vents cleaned of debris.

How do these fires happen? Well, dryer lint is one of the more flammable materials out there. And when there's a big buildup of it, a couple of things could happen. Either your appliance could overheat and eventually ignite the lint (which then could rapidly spread through the vent into your laundry room), or a stray spark from something electrical could land on the lint, causing it to catch on fire.

Both scenarios can be avoided with professional maintenance.

English Sweep stays involved with the communities in which we live and service. Throughout the month we have sponsored events like the Senior Expo 2023, attended ribbon cutting events with Superior Fence and Rail and Alloy Personal Training, participated in a Home Realtor Inspection meeting, and worked with local appliance and Heating/Cooling companies to form some great partnerships to share our knowledge.

Join our "FREQUENT FIRE" program! By booking your next service early you can save time and money. Ask us how you can join when you call or visit us at www.englishsweep.com!

English Sweep is proud to have had Bob Wise from the CVC success group out for a weeklong training with some of our crew members to have them achieve their NFI Gas Technician Certification to better serve our customers. We are always working on training our crews to become better at what they do.
